Governor Mike Dunleavy STATE OF ALASKA

February 6, 2026

Dear Fellow Alaskans,

I am honored to offer my strong support for the 2026 Alaska March for Life, taking place on Saturday, April 25, 2026, in Anchorage.

The question of how we treat the most vulnerable among us is one of the most profound moral issues of our time. For many Alaskans—across faith traditions, political affiliations, and walks of life—the protection of unborn children reflects a deeply held belief in the inherent dignity and worth of every human life, including those yet to take their first breath. I share that belief.

Alaska has a long tradition of valuing life, family, and personal responsibility. The Alaska March for Life provides an opportunity for citizens of all denominations and political stripes to come together peacefully and respectfully to affirm that every life matters and that compassion should guide our laws, our culture, and our communities.

The Alaska March for Life is not about division, it is about unity. It is about standing together in hope, offering support to mothers and families, and advocating for a future where both women and children are valued and protected. I encourage Alaskans from every corner of our Great State to participate, pray, reflect, and make their voices heard in a spirit of respect and conviction.

Thank you to the organizers, volunteers, and participants who are working tirelessly to make this event the biggest pro-life gathering in our State's history. Their commitment to life strengthens Alaska and reminds us that principled leadership begins with ordinary citizens willing to stand for what they believe is right.

May God bless this March, and may God continue to bless the great State of Alaska.

Sincerely,
